Site name and address

Red Cross Garden, 50 Redcross Way, London SE1 1HA.

Location

Down Redcross Way off Union Street, moments from London's busy Borough High Street. Red Cross Garden is an oasis of calm easily accessible from the major transport hub of London Bridge.

Description

Great for film and photography with Victorian listed cottages at the back of the garden and the Shard towering over the cityscape to the front. Features lush textured planting aimed at encouraging wildlife, traditional mixed flower beds, a large wildlife pond teaming with life, small lawns and smooth accessible paths.

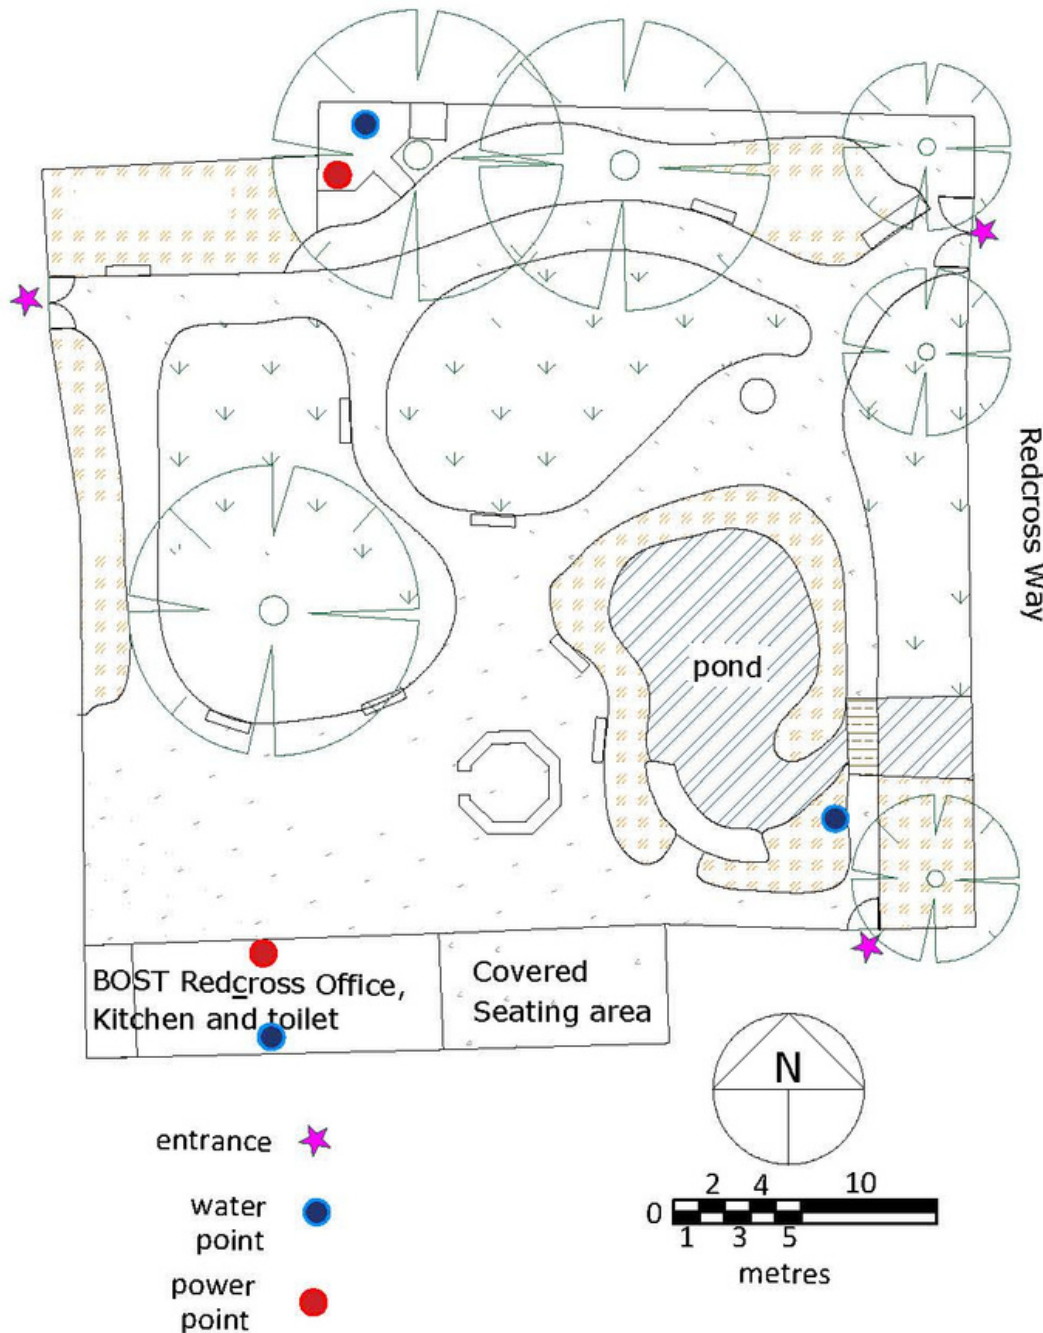

Red Cross Garden was originally conceived as an 'outdoor sitting room' by social reformer Octavia Hill and Bankside Open Spaces Trust stayed true to this vision when restoring the garden. The garden boasts a bandstand which doubles as seating, a covered area with tables and chairs and benches spread throughout the site.

The office may be added to the hire for event set up, to use a dressing room or to store equipment. It has a sink, fridge, kettle and power but no cooking facilities. There is also an accessible toilet on site for guests to use.

With high, but attractive, fences surrounding the garden, it is ideal for private parties, picnics and fundraising events.
